Borrowing from Plato's "Republic" the story of the men chained in a cave facing the wall, seeing only shadows of passing people thrown on the wall by the fire behind them, Jeans reminds us that we know only shadows of the universe. "We are still imprisoned in our cave, with our backs to the light, and can only watch the shadows on the wall."

That is exaggerated scientific modesty in such a man as Jeans. He shows you a plate. "A minute piece of the sky," three inches wide, nine inches long, photographed with the largest telescope in existence, the Mount Wilson 100-...

PLAN NO CHANGES HERE

Thirty-Two States in Eastern and Central Sections of Country Served.

A transfer in control of the Columbus, Delaware & Electric Co. was announced this morning by W. P. Moloney, president of the company.

The local company will now be affiliated with the Middle West Utilities System, instead of the United Gas Improvement Co. as in the past, Mr. Moloney stated.

The Middle West Utilities System is one of the largest and best known public utility groups. It operates in 32 states in the middle west and along the eastern coast. It has been active in industrial development work, and rural electrification throughout the territory served.

Ohio has long been one of the states served by companies in the Middle West Utilities System. The Ohio Electric Power Co. furnishes electric service to 83 communities, including Sidney, Norwalk, Oberlin and Ravenna.

Harry Reid, executive in the Middle West Utilities System who will come most directly in contact with the local company was unable to be in Marion today. His assistant, William Insull, was in the city this morning, however, discussing details of the transfer with Mr Moloney.

No immediate change in the policies of the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co. is contemplated.

Insull, who was here today, is a nephew of Samuel Insull of Chicago, internationally-known capitalist who heads the Middle West Utilities System.

12 ATTEMPT PRISON BREAK IN INDIANA

Rebellion, Led by "Lifer," Put Down by Guards; None Escape.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Dec. 29—Twelve convicts in the Indiana state prison made an unsuccessful attempt to escape today.

The break was led by Joseph Burns, sentenced to life imprisonment for murder, who opened a cellhouse door with a key fashioned from a spoon.

Burns and 11 others, all characterized as desperate men, tried to run for freedom.

The prison guards put down the rebellion.

Firemen and police from Michigan City surrounded the walls to prevent further disorder.

Burns, who was convicted of a murder during a bank robbery at Cutler, Ind., in 1925, opened the door to his own cell and released the other 11. They attacked Guy Burkiow, prison guard, seated at a desk in the cell house.

Burkiow yelled a warning to the guard in the adjoining cell house, who notified prison officials. Before the men could get past other locked doors, firemen and policemen armed with rifles surrounded the walls while other officers were sent into the building to assist the guards.

The rebellious prisoners were thrown into solitary confinement. They were "packed in like sardines," Warden Walter Daly said.

Cleveland Bandit Dons Uniform To Aid Exploits

By International News Service

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 29—A daring robber, who wears a policeman's uniform in his exploits, was the object of a police search in greater Cleveland today.

Carrying a "billy" club and attired in a complete official uniform, the bandit late yesterday attempted to hold up Frank Messec, 25, and slugged him into unconsciousness, police said. After forcing Messec's car to the curb with orders to stop because his tail light was out the bandit hit the man over the head and escaped in his own machine when he saw another car approaching. Messec was unconscious for several hours but his condition was not considered serious.

REPORT LISTS NEEDS OF OHIO WELFARE WORK

TELLS OF OVERCROWDING

Elimination of Fire Hazards Designated as Vital Problem.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 29—Comprehensive recommendations for relieving overcrowding, elimination of fire hazards, better care and medical treatment of inmates, and managerial change at Ohio's 22 welfare institutions were made by Governor Cooper's special welfare commission in a report submitted to him today. The governor is expected to include the commission's recommendations in his message to the legislature.

Because of frequent change in the head of the welfare department as now organized, preventing carrying through of policies, it was recommended that all legal and general authority over the institutions be placed in a non-salaried board of five members appointed by the governor for terms of 10 years each, one member being appointed each two years. Administration of the department would be left under one head as at present, but to be appointed by the proposed board of public welfare to serve at its pleasure.

Inasmuch as the commission was created by the governor a result of the penitentiary fire, elimination of fire hazards immediately is among the first recommendations made. "Serious fire hazards" were reported to have been found in certain buildings, which are accentuated by overcrowding. The Ohio inspection bureau, at the request of the governor through the state fire marshal, made an exhaustive inspection of all institutional buildings and made detailed recommendations which the commission asks be carried out immediately. These include construction of firewalls, fire doors, fire escapes, and installation of sprinkler systems. Besides immediate elimination of these hazards, the commission asked that no new buildings, ex-

Ceremony Proposed To Assume Both Statewide and National Character.

Special To The Star

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—Dedication of the Warren G. Harding memorial in Marion, O., will be made early in the coming year at a non-political ceremony that will assume a statewide as well as a national character it was indicated today. Week-end developments in the plan to have President Hoover and former President Coolidge to attend the occasion now include the participation of Ohio's recently elected Democratic governor and senator, George White and Robert J. Bulkley.

Under the auspices of the Memorial association's executive committee in the state of Ohio, the dedication would be invested with the dignity and impressiveness proper for paying formal tribute to a former president.

Telegram Sent President

Saturday night President Hoover received the following telegram from Louis H. Brush president of the Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., and a member of the executive committee of the Memorial association:

"The announcement of your readiness to attend the dedication of the Harding memorial is very pleasing. I have talked with most of the members of the executive committee who expressed similar gratification and the hope that arrangements for your visit to Marion may be promptly made to suit your convenience.

George Akerson, secretary to President Hoover, said that Mr. Hoover would accept when an invitation was extended under "the proper auspices." He added that no formal invitation had ever come to the President.

Fess Makes Statement

Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee and active in raising funds for the memorial, said it was true that no definite date had ever been proposed to President Hoover. In this, he was backed by George B. Christian, who was secretary to the dead President.

GIANT INDUSTRIAL DEAL RULED OUT BY JUDGE JENKINS

Minority Stockholders Win Long Battle Against Youngstown-Bethlehem Billion-Dollar Steel Combine.

METHODS OF MERGER BACKERS ATTACKED

By The Associated Press

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 29—The proposed billion-dollar merger of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube company was denied by Common Pleas Judge David G. Jenkins today when he granted minority stockholders an injunction restraining the combination.

Judge Jenkins rendered his decision six months from the inception of one of the bitterest legal fights in corporate history, a struggle of millions that was carried out first by proxies and then by law suit. Forces marshalled by Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier, went into court with charges of fraud after a spectacular battle for proxies.

The decision was based on the merger negotiations and the subsequent meeting on March 12 of the Sheet & Tube directors. Considering these proceedings illegal, the judge saw no reason for going into the numerous controversial points involved in the Sheet & Tube stockholders' meeting April 18, where the merger was ratified.

The court held that the Sheet & Tube board of directors, after they had approved the merger early this year, did not give adequate information to their stockholders on the merger when they met last April and approved it.

Whether intentionally or not, the decision said, the three accountants employed to make the audit of the merging companies prior to the merger delivered a misleading report to the stockholders.

The ratio of exchange of one share of Sheet & Tube stock for a share and a third of Bethlehem was also attacked. He said that his study of the accounting phases of the consideration "makes to my mind no definite conclusion possible that the final ratio was adequate."

Judge Jenkins said that the court was without sufficiently supported facts clearly to pass a judgment on the price involved in the merger. Also, he said, the Sheet & Tube directors and shareholders as well were without "any such basis for forming such judgment."

"Indeed to put it mildly," the decision said, "it must be frankly said that in the present state of the record grave doubt as to the adequacy of the consideration exists."

Guards Against Mistake

The decision was written in pencil by the judge in a round careful hand on 19 pages of foolscap paper. He made three copies himself, desiring that no mistake be made in having a stenographer or typist transcribe it.

One copy he filed with the clerk of the Mahoning county common pleas court. The other copies were presented to newspaper men.

Judge Jenkins will take a vacation before resuming his duties at the courthouse. "The big job is finished," he said.

The judge also censured the presence of Harry G. Dalton, partner in Pickands, Mather & Company of Cleveland and director of Bethlehem, at the Sheet & Tube directors' meeting March 12, when they ratified the merger.

Whether he voted or did not vote on the merger contract his presence and approval of the merger at that time "were in equity a breach of trust and against public policy."

This was one of the important points of attack by the merger foes.

"The evidence is clear to the court," the decision continued,

Both Split

(Will Rogers Special)

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Dec. 29—See a lot in the papers about the split in the Republican party over Norris. The Republican and Democratic parties both split.

The Republicans have their splits right after elections and Democrats have theirs just before an election.

Got a lot of wires from big and little firms saying they took the suggestion and told their people "they were not to be fired," and they all wrote how pleased their help was.

Now, New Year's is just as good a time to do as we Christmas was, so if you haven't told 'em, do so, and everything will pick up and they will even work better.

JOFFRE NEAR DEATH'S DOOR

Not Likely To Live Till Close of Day, Physicians Report.

NOTABLES VISIT BEDSIDE

Telegrams from All Parts of World Express Concern at Marshal's Condition.

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Dec. 29—Marshal Joffre, fighting a losing battle with death, sank into a state of extreme weakness today and his physicians issued a bulletin at 3 p. m. describing his condition as most grave.

A few minutes before the bulletin was issued, General Issie, chief of staff under the marshal, visited his old leader and reported that the hero of the Marne was sinking slowly.

Believe Death Imminent

The five doctors who have been at the patient's side day and night since Saturday, held out little hope that the marshal could live through the day.

"Marshal Joffre has reached a state of extreme weakness," the medical bulletin read. "His condition is most grave."

Dr. Fontaine, one of the five doctors, added his own comment.

"The marshal has reached a point where science is powerless to help him. Only his indomitable courage can work a miracle now."

Since 3 p. m. Sunday the hero of the Marne has been sinking. Most of the time he has been in a coma, with slight intervals in which he seemed to recognize those about him, but could not speak to them.

His left leg has been amputated in treatment of sever arthritis.

Senator Louis Barthou, minister of war, was the only person admitted to the dying man's presence last night, his visit being official in that he is head of the army and personal in that he is one of the closest of Marshal Joffre's friends.

Telegrams continued to come from all over the world, bringing the sympathy and condolences of governments and individuals who feel a debt of gratitude to the marshal for his handling of the French armies in the dark days of 1914, 1915 and 1916.

SEEK SOLUTION OF HOTEL ROOM MURDER

Slain Woman Unidentified as Cincinnati Police Hunt Clues of Slayer.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 29—Police continued their efforts today to identify a young woman, apparently 25 years old, killed in a hotel room here.

The termination of what they believe was a love affair left them with only one meager clue as to the woman's identity and no trace of her slayer.

Twenty hours after a couple registered at the hotel early Saturday morning as Mr. and Mrs. H. Miller of Columbus, the woman's body was found in bed and the man was gone.

The woman's skull was fractured, her neck broken, her chest severely bruised and there were indications of strangulation.

A note found in the room, written by the man, the police believed, read: "She struggled ... I tried to prevent her ... rolled." Although ... woman's clothes were ... all marks of ... removed.

ST. MARY BEATEN BY UPPER SANDUSKY

SHOVEL Y-INDUS OUT TO CHALK UP NINTH VICTORY OF SEASON

Clash with Bliss College on Shovel Gym Court Tonight.

Thoroughly resolved to avenge a beating taken Saturday night at the hands of the Columbus Y team the Shovel Y Indus basketball organization will take to the Shovel gym court tonight at 8 o'clock to face the Purple and Gold court warriors representing Bliss Business college of Columbus. Imbued with but a single idea that of convincing the Bliss players that good business men do not necessarily form the best basketball quintets the Indus group will be battling hard to ring up a victory.

Bliss is bringing a seasoned and experienced aggregation of high school stars here tonight to face the locals. Coach Wes Griffin has in Plank and Woodward formerly of Columbus Central High, two men who would look good on any college team and Mileusnich, formerly of Columbus South, is not far behind them in all-round ability. Mileusnich is a guard, Plank a center and Woodward plays at a forward post. The other first team posts are filled by Cohen, forward, and Trammler, guard.

The Shovel club will have its full strength on the floor tonight with Lockwood at center, Roush and Gillis at forwards and Cram and Keller at the guards.

Lockwood will probably face his sternest opposition of the season to date when he matches jumps with Plank. The erstwhile Central High athlete is a hard man to beat at the center post and it is not improbable that the Indus pivot man will be forced to miss the tip-off for the first time this season. Plank will also lead the local center a merry chase when it comes to floor work.

The pre-game stock of the Marion club took a slight drop when Columbus handed them the third beating of the season Saturday but the game tonight is expected to be a battle from start to finish.

A preliminary contest between two unannounced teams will commence an hour before time for the main contest.

National Loop Sluggers Led by Cub Outfielder

By United Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—Lewis R. "Hack" Wilson of the Chicago Cubs was the leading slugger in the National league last season, according to the official miscellaneous records released today.

The bandy-legged Chicago outfielder, in 585 times at bat, hit for a total of 423 bases for a slugging average of .723. Wilson had the largest total of runs batted in, 190, establishing a new record. He drew the most bases on balls, 105, and struck out the most times, 84.

Kiki Cuyler, also of Chicago, led the hit batsmen, having been struck 19 times by a pitched ball.

Of the regular players, Clifford R. Crawford of New York-Cincinnati, struck out the least number of times, 12, in 101 games.

After having batted in 100 or more runs for six consecutive seasons, Jimmy Bottomley of St. Louis, failed by three to push 100 across in 1930.

Chicago led all National league clubs in slugging percentage with .481, the most bases on balls, 585, the most strikeouts, 635, and the most batters hit by pitched ball, 37.

St. Louis led in runs batted in with 942, a new record, surpassing the mark of 933 established by Chicago in 1929.

St Louis was also the best "at home" club, winning 53 and losing 24 on its own diamond. New York led the pack away from home, winning 41 games abroad and losing 36.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 29—Two of the country's leading football teams—Washington State and Alabama—swept into the home stretch of a fast waning grid season today and settled down to final preparation for the sixteenth annual Tournament of Roses game here New Year's day.

Coach Orin "Babe" Hollingbery is satisfied with the physical and mental status of his Washington State array. Coach Wallace Wade is convinced his Alabamans have learned their football well, but isn't so sure that they will be in top form.

Both mentors rounded the turn in final preparations Saturday with tough sessions in the morning, and then allowed them a first hand study of gridiron geometry as displayed by the all-Notre Dame and west-south teams in their charity tussle in Los Angeles.

Yesterday was a day of relaxation, with trips to the Pacific ocean front taking the edge off a week of hard work for both aggregations.

Intersectional Games to Start Off Cage Season for Ohio College Fives

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 29—With 14 intersectional games on the books for Ohio colleges this week, the basketball season will get away to a gala start as the cage game opens in full force.

Although the Christmas vacation does not end until next Monday, most of the basketball aspirants in Ohio's 38 colleges were called back to their court camps today to resume training. Several games have been held in the past two weeks but none of them was of importance. They enabled the coaches, however, to pick out the flaws in their squads and a vacation of more than a week has given the mentors ample opportunity to plan new things and to remedy others.

Bishops Start Tour

Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware has a huge undertaking for the week. The Bishops will stay in the home state for one night and will then start a barnstorming tour toward the west which will take them to Michigan, Indiana and Illinois. Wesleyan will play the Akron Goodyear team at Akron and will then take on the University of Michigan, Michigan State, Manchester college and the University of Chicago.

Ohio State's lineup has been revamped considerably by Coach Harold G. Olsen and it is believed that the Big Swede from Wisconsin has things up his sleeve.

The Bucks meet Cornell at the home coliseum Wednesday night when the Ithicans begin a three-game invasion of Ohio.

Following the Buckeye clash, Cornell will amble down to Athens for a game with the Ohio university Bobcats on Thursday night and will then go to Cincinnati to match shots with the University of Cincinnati.

Westerners in Ohio

Brigham Young university of Salt Lake City, Utah, will come to Ohio for the first time Thursday night when it meets Wittenberg at Springfield. The Mormons will clash with Cincinnati Saturday night.

The University of Alabama will attract a lot of attention when it plays Wittenberg at Springfield Saturday night in a two-game charity bill. Lehigh visits the Lutherans Tuesday.

Only one Ohio conference game is on the week's program. The lone conference tilt will be played Saturday night wehn Case tackles the tough Akron university five.

Particular interest during the coming season will be given to the three new members of the Buckeye Athletic conference—Wabash, Butler and Wittenberg.

Additional intersectional games on the week's menu are Penn State Teachers vs. John Carroll at Cleveland on Tuesday night; St. Mary's of Orchard Lake, Mich., vs. John Carroll at Cleveland on Friday night, and Carnegie Tech vs. Western Reserve at Cleveland on Saturday.

Coaches Favor Retention of Much-Abused Point

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—The opening verbal blast of the annual meetings of intercollegiate athletic officials has developed support for football's much-abused point after touchdown.

A definite move toward abolition of the extra point had been widely forecast but the first official action of the meetings favored retention of this scoring feature of the game.

Delegates to the annual sessions of the eastern association of intercollegiate football officials last night approved the extra point but suggested that the penalties for fouls occurring while the try for point is made now are too drastic. They referred specifically to the present rule under which extra points are awarded, or disallowed, because of offside. They suggested imposition of distance penalties for offside.

The association asked for a uniform interpretation of the fumble rule so that on all kicks as well as fumbles "the ball, if recovered before it strikes the ground, may be advanced by the one recovering."

It was just on such a play that Barres, Yale end, scored a touchdown against Georgia last season, and thereby a widespread discussion as to the legality of the play under the fumble rule which says that a fumble of a kicked ball is dead at the point of recovery. Barres grabbed a kicked ball after it bounded out of the rams of a Georgia play. The ball did not touch the ground before Barres caught it.

TO PLAY TONIGHT

This former star basketball player of Columbus South High school will be in the Bliss Business college lineup here tonight when the team clashes with the Shovel Y-Indus five on the Shovel gym court. Mileusnich will play a guard and probably do as good a job of it as any other man on the floor.

The Bliss-Y-Indus game should be a great battle from start to finish. The home team will be fighting to run its home floor victories to 21 in a row. The game starts at 8:15.

High Scoring Week Hits National Hockey Boys

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—The season of high scores struck the National hockey league along with the holiday season last week and the players set a few new records as they banged away at the nets for a total of 74 goals in eleven games.

Changes in the standings were unimportant. The New York Rangers defeated the Canadiens, Ottawa and Philadelphia in succession and last night's 4-2 triumph over the Quakers left them only a point behind the second place Chicago Blackhawks, in the American group.

Toronto crept back into a tie with the New York Americans for third place in the Canadian division.

Former Indian Infielder To Manage Springfield

By United Press

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 29—William Wamby Gasss who as "Bill Wamby" gained fame as a Cleveland Indians infielder, will manage the 1931 Springfield Three Eye league baseball team.

Wamby was a star on Cleveland's 1920 world championship team and made the only unassisted triple play in world series history. Since his release from the major leagues Wamby has served as a player and coach at Kansas City and New Orleans.

His curiosity should be transformed into some kind of scientific enthusiasm.

Alabama Cagers After Twenty-Third Victory

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Dec. 29—University of Alabama cagers, winners of 23 consecutive basketball games, hope to annex their twenty-fourth victory in meeting the Northwestern university five at Evanston Wednesday night.

The Crimson cagers hold the Southeren conference championship.

Tomorrow night Purdue will invade the east for a battle with Pitsburgh. The Boilermakers will engage Temple at Philadelphia Thursday night. Purdue makes its eastern invasion as a true representative of midwest basketball. In the last five years Purdue teams have won or shared in three Big Ten titles and have finished runner-up two years.

Tomorrow night also will find Brigham Young university of Salt Lake City meeting the University of Chicago in Chicago and Wisconsin battling Marquette in Milwaukee.

LOCAL IRISH BEATEN 19-12; TRAIL WINNERS THROUGHOUT GAME

Fye and Harmon Taken from Contest Via Four-Foul Route.

St. Mary's parochial cagers dropped the fifth consecutive contests Saturday night, losing to the Upper Sandusky High school five 19 to 12. The game was fast and hard played, with numerous fouls being called. Fye of the St. Mary's team and Harman of Upper Sandusky were ejected from the contest via the four foul route.

St Mary's trailed the winners throughout the game. The score was 11 to 3 at the half. The losers made a bid for victory in the third period running the count to 11 to 9 but Upper again took a big advantage in the last quarter.

BUCKEYES PREPARE FOR OPENING BATTLE

Olsen May Shift Lineup for Game with Cornell Five.

By United Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 29—Ohio State's revamped basketball team began double practice duty today, preparing for its cage game Wednesday night with Cornell. The Ohio squad will practice twice a day until Jan. 5 when classes are resumed.

The Ohio State players have injuries but the rest were in good condition. Lew Hinchman, sophomore forward, has an injured knee and Lowell Wrigley, forward, has a bad foot.

Coach Harold Olsen has indicated that the starting lineup will not resembel the one which began against Pittsburgh two weeks ago. Ohio lost to Pitt 25 to 17 in a slow game.

The veterans, Wesley Fesler at guard and Harold Ervin at forward, probably will be the only players starting against Cornell who started the Pitt clash. Bob Lively, former Dayton Stivers High school star, may take the other forward post. Dick Larkins will start at guard and Ralston Russell at center unless Coach Olsen changes the lineup again.

ROCKNE TO CONTINUE AS HEAD OF IRISH

Notre Dame Wizard Announces Intention of Staying in Coaching Game.

By International News Service

ROCHESTER, Minn., Dec. 29—"So long as college football wants me and as long as I think I have the ability to keep pace with the present-day college football I will continue to coach."

Thus did Knute Rockne, director of athletics and head football coach at the University of Notre Dame, give his answer today to rumors that he is about to step aside as football coach at Notre Dame.

The gridiron wizard plans to leave Mayo clinic next Wednesday for South Bend, Ind., where he will resume his duties as director of athletics at Notre Dame.

It was learned that he had submitted to a minor operation here last week on the advice of his medical adviser, Dr. J. C. Barborka, a member of the clinic staff. The operation proved succesful, according to the doctor.

NONE FOR CHARITY

Football Game Gate Amounts to Less Than Operating Expenses.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—Less than 2,000 spectators turned out to watch a picked football team from southern colleges defeat a similar northern aggregation at Ebbets field yesterday, 7-0. The gate was less than expenses.

The gridiron was covered with snow and ice. In the third period George Davidson, University of Georgia quarterback, passed on his 20-yard line to Holland, Tulane, for a gain of 37 yards; slipped off tackle yards, and passed to Jim Magner, North Carolina back, who ran the rest of the way to a touchdown. Davidson kicked the extra point.

SHAMROCKS AT TOP

"Whataman" Booked on Disorderly Conduct Charge in Hollywood.

By International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Dec. 29—C. Arthur "Whataman" Shires, well known Chicago and Washington major league ball player and more lately a figure on Hollywood's motion picture lots, was arrested today after making a disturbance in the police station.

Police Sergeant G. C. Towne started to book the first baseman on a charge of intoxication, but on searching Shires Towne said he found him to be carrying a pair of brass knuckles which is a violation of a state law embracing a deadly weapon act of California. The charge was changed when the weapon was found.

SPORTS

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

THE announcement issued today by Knute Rockne of Notre Dame takes away a lot of opportunity for discussion as to whether or not the South Bend Wizard would continue to hold the coaching reins of the Irish school. Rockne has let it be known in a very simple manner that he does not intend to quit coaching, either this year or for several years to come if his health will allow him to keep on.

Although he has spoiled the chances for discussion on that point he has opened the avenue for a lot more good arguments, all of them centering on what Notre Dame will do on the football field next year. Of course all of the arguments will have to await next season for settlement but the Hot Stove league can pass away a lot of time talking things over.

Southern California is not planning to continue long in the second place seat among the nation's football teams. For next year the Trojans have arranged a football schedule even tougher than the famous suicide schedule undertaken by the Notre Dame team this year. Ten games are carded without a breather among them. If they beat the Irish record for this year they will have earned any recognition they get.

It won't be long now until the present inactivity in the local sports arena will be transformed into a dizzy whirl in which basketball will be the center of attraction. The North Central Ohio league will jump into action Friday night with a trio of games listed. Bucyrus will make the trip to Ashland to open the season and Shelby will trek to Galion to start off its quest for the second straight title. Mansfield will bring its Tygermen here to do battle with the Bohyer-coached team.

The county— school will delay the start of the after-holiday schedule for another week yet. Play will be resumed in both the eastern and western circuits of the county on Jan. 9.

The Sunday School league will start play a week from Tuesday night. At present Waldo, First Presbyterians and Central Christians are leading a tight race in the church circuit and play is expected to be unusually hard fought in the coming league contests.

Sixteen Junior Players Survive in Tourney

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—Sixteen junior tennis players and 32 boys under the 15-year age limit resume play today in the national junior and boys' indoor tennis championships.

The Juniors, survivors of a field of 144, open their fifth round matches.

William Jacobs of Baltimore and the University of Pittsburgh, who has lost only four games in winning three matches, plays George A. Harris, Jr., of Brown. Kendall H. Cram of Nashville, Tenn., No. 5, faces William Lurie of City College of New York.

The contestants in the Boys' tournament enter the third round. Among the survivors is Irving Blum of Baltimore.

SHOVEL CLUB LOSES THIRD GAME OF YEAR TO COLUMBUS TEAM

Capital City Five Rallies Final Minutes To Win, 35-33.

A defense that faltered in the closing minutes of a hard-fought battle cost the Shovel Y-Indus five its third defeat of the year Saturday night. The Columbus Y. M. A. basketeers defeated the Marion team 35 to 33, after trailing the locals until late in the fourth period.

Marion opened the hostilities in the usual slam-bang manner, scoring 19 points in the first period while the opposition could collect but three.

It was the same story in the second and third quarters. Apparently the Columbus five did not have a chance to check the scoring machine of the Marion club so accurate were its passes and so smooth its floor work. The Indus five retained the lead easily, Columbus trailing at half 13 to 7 and at the third period 24 to 17.

Columbus Rallies

It was in the final frame that the Capital City five erased the advantage of the Marion club and smeared another splotch on its won and lost record of the Shovel outfit.

Balked in their efforts to crack the Y-Indus defense open to shots through for sucker shots the opponents commenced heaving the ball from mid-floor. How successful they were can be easily understood with the simple explanation that by the middle of the last half Columbus had run the count to within one point of the local's score.

Gillis Ties Count

With only a couple of minutes remaining to play the Y-Indus set its advantage wiped away with a well directed Columbus two point play. Vic Gillis put his team back in the running with a free toss that tied the score but it went for naught as another Columbus shot found its target for two points. Chuck Osterholt made a desperate attempt to deadlock the count as the game ended dropping a set shot through the net. That is, it would have been two points had the referee not ruled that it left Osterholt's hands after the playing time was completed.

Bill Keller, hefty Y-Indus guard dominated the court for the losers Saturday night. On defense he completely outshone his running mate, Cram. Keller also broke through for eight points to place second in scoring for his team.

Lineup and summary:

| Y-Indus | G | F | Columbus | G | F |

STOCK MARKET TRADING DULL

Close of Year Business Stirs Little Enthusiasm; Prices Slump.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—The stock markets drew toward the close of a trying year today with little enthusiasm over wiping the slate for a fresh start.

The market appeared to have been thoroughly oversold and rallied sharply for a time during the forenoon, but by early afternoon the list was again dragging toward the year's lowest levels. Prediction of business recovery in 1931 is slow, but sure are now frequently heard in Wall street, and economic advisory services usually originating investment banking houses say there need be no hurry about making purchases, all of which tended to keep markets depressed.

Tax selling continued to trickle from the stock market and rails were again conspicuously heavy. Losses in the main were moderate, however, and most of the pivotal industrials maintained a good undertone. U. S. Steel, American Can and Case were among issues selling up a point or two, then losing their gains. Radio common and preferred shares dropped to new low levels and in the rails, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio Atchison, and Chicago & Northwestern lost about two points, the last named recording a new minimum. Union Pacific lost 4.

Important corporate news included mailing of the merger of Youngstown Sheet & Tube with Bethlehem Steel, and the final drafting of a proposal to unify the New York traction companies.

Both developments appeared to have been largely discounted by the stock market.

Republic and Inland Steels which are regardsd as Eaton companies were firm for a time but Bethlehem and Youngstown were little changed.

Call money showed the customary year-end firmness, renewing at 2½ per cent, and moving up to 3½, the highest since May, as loans were called rather heavily. Last year at this time, however, the rate was 6 per cent and two years ago it touched 12 per cent. Other monetary accommodations were virtually stationary.

Copper was quoted at 10¼ cents a pound, up ¼, for domestic shipment. Bar Silver however, eased close to its recently recorded low for all time.

The Guaranty Trust Co., in its monthly survey, said that the reduction in the federal reserve rediscount rate will probably have a favorable effect on business sentiment."

GRAIN VALUES RECORD GAINS

Foreign Crop Reports Tend To React Favorably on Chicago Prices.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Dec. 29—Owing largely to Argentine and Australian reports of unfavorable harvest weather for wheat, grain prices here averaged higher in the early dealings today. The amount of wheat on ocean passage showed 2,424,000 bushels falling off compared with a week ago. Opening strength to an equal advance, Chicago wheat futures scored a subsequent rise all around. Corn started at ⅛c setback to 1c gain and later showed a general upturn.

Too much wet weather delaying harvest operations in the chief wheat producing countries of the southern hemisphere was a reason assigned both for relative firmness of the Liverpool market and for an upward trend of wheat values here. A more hopeful prospect for wheat export business from North America also was noted. Alternate freezing and thawing conditions in domestic winter wheat territory were reported as causing crop damage with lack of seasonal moisture an additional unfavorable influence.

Corn was higher upon advices that rural offerings had become scanty. Feed manufacturers reported all of forage on farms was being used for livestock and one trade expert said "the most profitable use for corn now is to buy a pig make a hog of himself." Corn receipts here were but 74 cars against 982 at this time last year. Oats followed corn. Provisions went lower with hogs.

BOBBY'S STANCE BEFORE "MIKE" MAY BE SHAKY

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA—Bobby Jones is afraid of the microphone.

The quadruple champion of the golfing world will not go before the Mike with the same calm self-assurance that has marked his stirring conquests of the greens.

Beginning Jan. 14, Bobby will begin a 26-weeks series of 15-minute radio talks over a nation-wide network.

He will tell the invisible audience of his experiences during the past 14 years and hopes that "we'll have a lot of fun out of it."

But to his closest friends he agrees with Ruth Bryan Owen that if you want to know what a job is, try having yourself shut up in a sound-proof room with a contrivance that looks like a monstrous electric fan and try to tell funny stories.

The golfer's talks are not to be funny except as he recalls some incident in his career that has become humorous with the passing of years. His talks are to be given in his own casual conversational style.

He will describe the highlights of his golfing and from time to time a bit of instructive comment upon the game which he has played better than any other person.

It took him a long time to make up his mind to go on the air. For more than a year many attractive offers have been made him but only to be refused.

Bobby's radio appearances have been few and characterized by their brevity. There were nearly all in connection with welcoming events planned in his honor, and at times consisted of a courteous "I thank you."

He has written a book on golf and has syndicated thousands of newspaper articles about the game he loves but rarely has he agreed to talk about it in public much less by radio.

Announcement that he will become a radio speaker comes on the heels of his retirement from competitive golf and his decision to enter the movies.

He has signed a contract for the production of 12 reels of instructive golfing demonstrations with sound effects which are to be made next spring.

Bobby retired from competitions in amateur golf after he had won in a single year the silver vase of the British Open, the slim gold cup of the American Amateur, the huge silver trophy representing the British Amateur and the American Open championship cup.

These four trophies and the Walker cup won in 1930 by a team of which Jones was captain, are all in the possession of the retiring champion here in Atlanta.

GOLFERS point out that this is the first time in 500 years of golf history that all these cups have been in the possession of one man and agree that in all probability it will be the last.

Bobby's first radio talk will be broadcast over the WEAF network of the National Broadcasting company's network at 8 p. m. (EST), January 14, originating at WSB Atlanta.

Innermost Affairs of Steel Corporations Disclosed to Public During Progress of Long Court Battle

By The Associated Press

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 29—The innermost business affairs of two of the greatest steel companies in America were paraded before the public for more than three months during the trial of the suit brought by the interests of Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier, to block the merger of Youngstown Sheet & Tube company with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, which culminated today in a decision against the merger by Judge David G. Jenkins.

The hearing opened on June 25, 1930, and was adjourned on Sept. 24 with the completion of testimony.

Twice visited by death, which removed one of the plaintiffs in the case, the trial dragged far beyond the expectations of anyone while millionaires, business heads and men who know steel from working in the mills, looked on from day to day.

On the one side was Eaton, comparatively young and highly successful financier, who cropped up from almost nowhere, and put together the third largest steel company in the country, The Republic corporation. Eaton also is a large holder of Sheet and Tube stock.

Deny Fraud Charges

On the other side were the Youngstown and Bethlehem officers defending themselves against charges that they had fraudulently put through a deal unfair to Sheet and Tube's stockholders.

For three months the battle waged over these chief issues, whether the exchange of one and a third shares of Bethlehem for each share of Sheet and Tube was equitable; whether the contract, as ratified by the Youngstown stockholders on April 8, was legally executed, whether the proxies cast in the shareholders' meeting were validly voted.

The hearing was twice adjourned—first because of the suicide of LeRoy A. Manchester, chief counsel for Sheet and Tube, and latter, because of the death of Myron Wick Jr., Youngstown broker.

Wick was co-plaintiff with the International Shares Corporation, an Eaton investment concern. His executors entered the suit in his stead.

Bonuses Revealed

The witness stand figuratively proved no respector of persons or companies in the disclosure of intimate business affairs. Counsel for the plaintiffs delved into the Bethlehem bonus plan and revealed that Bethlehem executives received more than $5,000,000 in bonuses last year. Eugene Grace, president of the corporation, testified that his bonus for 1929 was approximately $1,600,000.

The plaintiffs sought to show that the large bonuses were not taken into account by Youngstown directors when they recommended the merger to their stockholders.

The defense countered with testimony that the bonuses figured upon one of the corporation's biggest incomes, deducted before the 1929 earnings of the two companies were placed upon a comparable basis for determining the fair ratio of the stock exchange, that the effect upon the stock issuable to Youngstown shareholders would be only 30 cents a share if the bonus plan continued unchanged.

The Bethlehem President Frank Purnell, Youngstown president, J. A. Campbell, Sheet and Tube chairman and Henry G. Dalton, director in both companies, explained how they backed the merger as sound business.

Campbell Defends Course

Chairman Campbell, on of the oldest and most picturesque figures in the steel industry related his part in the negotiations and his belief that Youngstown was soundly favored with a diversification of products it needed. He testified that if his company remained independent it would be forced to spend $30,000,000 remodeling and re-adapting its sheet and pipe mills.

The plaintiffs recalled their guns particularly at Dalton, who took an active part in the merger negotiations although he did not vote at the Youngstown directors' meeting.

Dalton was called to the stand three times. Easton in his direct testimony accused Dalton and Campbell of breaking faith with him. Intimate details of the unsuccessful attempt to merge Inland Steel of Chicago with Sheet & Tube was revealed while he was on the stand. Eaton declared that he was still working on the Inland negotiations last January while Campbell and Dalton were discussing the Bethlehem plan and all the while with Grace in New York, without his knowledge. He said the first he heard of the Bethlehem merger was on March seventh, when Dalton told him the terms had been arranged.

Eaton Vigorously Quizzed

There was no refutation of this testimony but the defense set out to prove that Eaton opposed the Bethlehem merger because he wanted Youngstown for other purposes. The financier underwent a long cross examination to test his credibility as a witness. His statement that an appraisal of the Bethlehem properties should have been made, just as appraisals were made in merging the component parts of his Republic corporation, was the object of another attack. The defense pointed out failing to do, in his merger activities, the things which he criticised the Youngstown executives for failing to do.

Eaton elaborated on his views that the Bethlehem merger was economically unsound. He expressed belief that the Bethlehem plants are poorly located, that Bethlehem's markets are centered in the east while the trend of demand is westward, that Bethlehem is a high cost producing company.

In relating details of the conferences he had with merger principals, prior to the action of the Youngstown directorate on March 12, Eaton made statements, the veracity of which later were questioned by the defense. Grace returned from New York to stake his word against Eaton's.

Proxy Voting Assailed

The anti-merger forces purchased about 60,000 shares of Sheet & Tube stock after March 22, which the management set as the date of record for the April 8 shareholders meeting. Proxies on these shares were obtained by the management from the date of record owners and voted in favor of the merger. The plaintiffs contended the procedure was illegal.

The controversy on this question arose during the proxy war carried on for nearly a month prior to the stockholders meeting.

Arm Patrolmen with Shotguns To Stop Crime

SAN FERNANDO, Calif.—Here is one solution to the crime wave:

This city has added a patrol to its police department which will walk the streets from 9 p. m. until dawn—armed with sawed-off shotguns.

The patrol consists of two policemen assigned to this duty at the suggestion of Chief of Police T. W. Grady.

"And we mean business," said one of these policemen. "There's a lot of talk going on now about a policeman getting himself in trouble with the politicians because he shoots somebody who had it coming to him. That sort of politics doesn't go in San Fernando — we mean business with our shotguns.

"Burglars and gangsters had better give this town a wide berth."

WILL ASK APPROVAL OF "MERCY DEATH"

Coroner's Jury To Decide If Death of Hopeless Cripple Is Justified.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Dec. 29—The possibility that the question of "moral rights" of a "mercy death" might be presented to a coroner's jury for legal approval loomed today as the county coroner prepared to hold an inquest into the death of Merle Hinckley, 21, a hopeless cripple since birth.

Merle was found dead last Saturday in a gas-filled room in his home. With him was his father, Dr. Carl A. Hinckley, unconscious, with his arm enfolding the boy's body. Restored to consciousness, Dr. Hinckley, a dentist, said the boy had died of heart disease and that he, overwhelmed by grief, had attempted to follow him in death. Yesterday, however, Dr. Hinckley was reported to have said he was not sure—that possibly he had mistaken a heart attack for death.

Blood tests were expected to determine definitely the agency that caused death, but suggestions of the state, Dr. John M. Henderson, the Hinckley's family physician, said he intended to ask the coroner's jury to believe that whatever the cause, the boy's death was merciful [illegible] Dr. Hinckley [illegible] Dr. Henderson [illegible] "I [illegible] Dr. [illegible]

Erie To Use Fleet of Powerful Tugs

A fleet of four Diesel-electric tugs each having a capacity of 1,000 horse power, has been added to the marine equipment of the Erie Railroad for service in New York harbor, according to information received at the local Erie offices.

Their principal service will be in the handling of heavy floats between the main rail line terminals in New Jersey and the various interchange points on Long Island, Brooklyn, Harlem and Bronx waterfronts and the big fruit and perishable cargo terminals on the Manhattan side of the Hudson and East rivers.

There is better repartee than "Is that so?" but that has to serve often and often.

Ohio Farmers Continue Faith in Wheat Crop

Seeded Acreage Over Last Year in Spite of "Political Advice"; General Situation Regarded as Favorable, State Bulletin Reports.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 29—Ohio farmers have won over politics in the matter of their own farm management, Ohio farmers have shown acreage, and the result is a 2 per cent increase in the seeded this autumn, according to a bulletin issued here by the Ohio Farm Bureau. The bulletin continues:

"The decision was made in the face of persistent advice to lower acreage because of overproduction and poor prices. When it came time to choose between economic demands and political advice."

Seeded acreage for wheat in Ohio is reported at 1,912,000 acres as against 1,893,000 acres last year. The increase is one per cent.

Decrease in U. S.

For the United States as a whole there is a decrease of one per cent in acreage with a reported total of 42,842,000 acres as against 43,323,000 acres seeded last fall. Acreage differences of one per cent might be accounted for through possible inaccuracies in the government system of reporting but these figures show conclusively that there has not been any decided change in wheat acreage this year as compared with last year.

No one has been able to find a satisfactory substitute to take the place of wheat in Ohio's system of farming. Prices must be low and the outlook unfavorable for such an increase in prices that might be forthcoming as yet but in the face of these facts Ohio farmers show how they can afford to raise wheat.

Valuable Crop

Wheat furnishes a means of turning cultivated lands into bread and to provide postage and pay. Oats are unsatisfactory as a grain to accompany grass seeding and rye has not been used to any great extent by Ohio farmers for this purpose.

Another great advantage of wheat lies in the fact that it furnishes cash at mid-summer when sales on Ohio farms are at a low level. The need for cash crops next summer will be very great and Ohio farmers are looking ahead to meet this demand.

In many of the western states wheat is now produced at a low cost through the use of machinery. The outlook in those sections for prices still leaves some margin of profit in the production of wheat.

Some more favorable items of statistics are beginning to appear in the wheat situation.

The Argentine crop is reported to be larger than last year's crop but less than the big 1928 production. However, the holdover is smaller than last year, so that the exportable surplus is not so very different from a year ago. The Australian crop surplus is large.

Favorable Outlet

A favorable feature of the situation is the amount of wheat now being taken by eastern countries.

All in all, the situation is promising. The Ohio farmer on his own scale is one of the best wheat raisers in the world. His farms do not rival, in mass production, the huge tracts of Kansas, the Dakotas, Montana, and the other western states—but one of the principal crops by which he lives is wheat. Oats, rye and corn are on many of the Buckeye farms secondary to the wheat crop.

Postal Savings Show Huge Increase Here

Number of Depositors Boosted from 51 to 89 Since June 30; Total Involved Up from $21,546 to $60,697 in Same Period; Report Issued from Washington.

Deposits in the postal savings department of the Marion postoffice have increased $39,151 since Jan. 30, 1931, in accordance with the annual report of the postal savings system just issued from the post office department at Washington. There were depositors at that time on June 30, 1930, 51 with $21,546 while a check up Jan. 30 last showed deposits of $60,697 showing a [illegible] cent. Depositors [illegible] closed 31 and Friday [illegible] Marion to one of the [illegible] showing high in per[illegible] and has a higher [illegible] of gain in comparison [illegible] size of its size and [illegible]

[illegible] were shown throughout the country in the east north central west north central south Atlantic east south central west [illegible] central and Pacific divisions [illegible] decreases were reported in the New England, middle Atlantic, mountain and territorial divisions.

Reason for Slump

The regional slump, the report shows, was influenced by restrictions on immigration, the higher interest rate in the commercial field, postwar conditions and other lesser factors.

The number of depositors throughout the country increased from 416,584 to 466,461 and the gain in accounts was 11.90 per cent. Postal savings funds were held at the close of the year by 2,872 banks of which 2,601 were national banks, 435 state banks members of Federal reserve system, 750 state banks, non-members and two organized private banks under state supervision. The system showed a net profit in the fiscal year 1930 of $155,452.92 after deducting departmental and postal service expenses amounting to $1,426,240.92.

At the close of the year there were 5[illegible] depositories in [illegible] including [illegible] branches and stations an increase of 25 depositories during the fiscal year. The outstanding principal to the credit of postal savings depositors represented by certificates of deposit was $175,277,500, an increase of $30,027,157 over the amount for the corresponding date the preceding year.

The postal savings is cited as a logical refuge for the timid and is said to salvage millions from stockings, pipes, mouse holes, mother earth and other hiding places. It also is said to have stemmed the tide of other millions flowing to foreign shores in the saving of thrifty but distrustful aliens.

Family Institution

The postal savings system in some instances is now virtue of a family institution, as one frequently every member of the household has an account. New accounts are recorded every day and visitors to the department frequently prove that in many cases the old-fashioned banking system still is in use. The aged family national bank is not an uncommon place for hoarding savings and not so long ago a depositor took from a black stocking something over $16,000 much of which was in gold to exchange for savings securities. Just how long it took to save the more than $16 in dimes which apparently had been hoarded in a container which was conducive to rust, would be difficult to figure and it is not an uncommon thing to find depositors exchanging large amounts of the large five, ten and one dollar bills which were discontinued more than a year ago, for savings certificates.

Among the Ohio cities listed in the officials report are: Ada two depositors, $675; Akron 288 depositors, $12,351; Ashland four depositors, $2,029; Bucyrus five depositors, $1,915; Cardington three depositors, $1,658; Canton 48 depositors, $49,030; Cleveland 793 depositors, $202,888; Columbus 824 depositors, $259,990; Dayton 412 depositors, $129,804; Delaware 15 depositors, $4,912; East Liverpool 21 depositors, $8,291; Galion 19 depositors, $9,477; Kenton seven depositors, $404; Mansfield 24 depositors, $6,778; Portsmouth 26 depositors, $8,987; Sandusky 27 depositors, $9,571; Steubenville 62 depositors, $37,836. New York City has 79,480 depositors with $20,248,932.

Five Counties Are Represented in Group Listed in O. S. U. Departments.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 29—Between 600 and 700 farm women in five Ohio countries are participating in a citizenship project conducted by the extension service in Home Economics at Ohio State university, studying the problems of county and township government, school systems and the inheritance rights of women and children, according to Mrs. Blanche B. Bowers, assistant state home demonstration leader in the state institution.

The project, which is one of the few of its kind in the country, discusses with the assistance of local officials the problems of local government. Both sides of the question under discussion are given and the women draw their conclusions from the evidence presented at the meetings and in the reference literature.

In analyzing the school systems in their counties, the women discuss in detail the financing of schools, the desirability of consolidation, curricula, the function of the school clerk, the school principal, and the county superintendent, in addition to other problems.

The discussions on county government deal with the cost of such government, the organization and the county, and the functions of various local officials. Problems of township government are approached in much the same way.

Another part of the project considers the legal and the political rights of women, and meetings are held for discussion groups on divorce, common law marriage and property and inheritance rights.

Cardington Pleads Guilty; Two Marion Youths Sent to Jail.

Special To The Star

SANDUSKY, Dec. 29 — Cunningham, 24, of Toledo was sentenced to from five to 25 years in Ohio penitentiary today when he pleaded guilty to a single indictment charging breaking and entering a filling station here. Cunningham, who was arrested in connection with the burglary, was released from the county jail here. Authorities here declared before the grand jury that the husband forced her to participate in the burglary.

Assistant county prosecutor Ralph Kerr said that he would attempt to have Cunningham to serve the maximum sentence of 15 years unless the grand jury will be asked to indict him for third offense charges, he said has been convicted on three charges.

Cunningham is a former resident of Marion and her parents live near Cardington in Morrow county. Marion authorities declared that he were implicated in the burglaries of two stores and a filling station there.

Two Marion county youths were sentenced to 30 days in jail in connection with the theft of corn from a farm near Wyandot. They were Bernard Vaughn, 18, of near Marion and Dorothy Dykes, 19, of Marion. They pleaded guilty to the petty larceny indictment and were given the option of a $50 fine or the workhouse.

John Bullock, 19, of Carey was sentenced from one to 15 years in the Mansfield reformatory after pleading guilty to charges of entering a railroad car. Jack H. Wilson of Cleveland pleaded guilty to charges of issuing checks without funds and was sentenced from one to three years at the Mansfield reformatory.

does it travel from the distant nebulae in 50 million years?

And what are those nebulae, small specks on a telescope photograph? Jean says: "Each nebula contains some thousands of millions of stars or the material for their formation." About two million such nebulae can be photographed in all and there are probably millions of millions of others beyond the range of any telescope.

Many are not interested in such far away matters and are rather proud of that. More than a million men and women in Paris have never taken the trouble to visit Notre Dame, and are probably proud of their lack of interest. But it is not to their credit.

RAMSAY MACDONALD in England, Irving I. Bush, able business man in America, both see prosperity coming back in 1931. Mr. Bush thinks we are having our final housecleaning "after our speculative debauch." Mr. MacDonald expects to "see optimism and courage return and a new story of progress beginning." The trouble is that no one knows what the matter is.

Speculation was only one feature of our foolishness, comparatively unimportant, and there has always been plenty of optimism. The gamblers were gambling, most optimistically, in October, not knowing that the real slump had come the previous June. However, nothing lasts forever, and with some stocks, perfectly safe, paying as much as 10 per cent on present cost, there is bound to come a change.

A FINE NEW CHURCH in New York, called "the Rockefeller church," because Mr. Rockefeller helped build it, is ornamented with many statues of saints. That you expect.

It is also decorated, which you do not expect, with statues of scientists and strangest of all, one statue represents the living Einstein.

The great mathematician went, with his wife, to see himself in stone, and was well pleased with the company about him, Newton, Kepler, Galileo and others. He remarked that such a combination on any church would not be possible in Europe with great religions characters honored, side by side with great scientists, the only living man among them being a Jewish mathematician undertaking to set bounds to the universe.

However, gargoyles on the old cathedrals showed many devils, and monstrous offensive beasts, far worse than scientists.

REAR ADMIRAL MOFFETT says this country must expand its airplane carrier tonnage to the limit allowed by the London treaty to avoid dangerous inferiority. He demands fast cruisers, built to carry airplanes on their decks.

Plane carriers of all kinds are built on the assumption that airplanes must have some place to land, the plane is used with the carrier, as men used hawks for hunting, in ancient times the bird returning to rest on its owner's wrist.

Why does this richest government in the world, with all its able engineers, continue to assume that the airplane must be a limited, feeble thing, not really reliable in flight. Why does not the government build planes that would not need any carrier on which to roost? It can be done, and this richest nation should do it.

Half the money spent on one battleship would perfect aviation to the extent of making carriers unnecessary.

Once steamships all carried sails, fearing to rely entirely on steam, and house with electric light had gas installed also "in case the current should give out."

Such is the present stage of flying. This government, that may some day depend for its safety on perfected airplanes, should build planes independent of carriers and ports.

MT. GILEAD WORKER ROBBED BY TWO MEN

Escape in Car After Holdup Nets $15; Machine Located in Marion.

MT. GILEAD, Dec. 29 — James Lee, an employe of the Hydraulic Press Mfg. Co., was held up and robbed by two men at the intersection of West High street and Delaware avenue Saturday night shortly after midnight. They secured between $10 and $15.

The two men drove around Lee on High street and parked their automobile in front of a house on Delaware avenue near the intersection coming back on foot to meet him. One was wearing a black overcoat and the other a tan tweed. Both wore caps. They were described by Lee as short and dark, approximately 20 years old. He believed their car to be a Buick coupe. Night officer W. E. Corwin was notified but was unable to trace the car.

This is the first armed holdup to occur in Mt. Gilead for ten years. The car, believed to have been used in the holdup, was found in Marion.

Minority Stockholders Win Long Battle in Youngstown Court.

"that he knowingly was not acting for all the shareholders of Sheet & Tube in that steps were taken to delay advising them of the existence of and the point to which the privately conducted negotiations had gone.

"He was therefore, in this, not acting for Sheet & Tube but for the other company (Bethlehem), even though honestly intending to act in what he believed to be for the best interests of Sheet & Tube."

Bonus System Hit

Dalton was also criticized for not informing himself and Sheet & Tube stockholders of the bonuses paid to Bethlehem executives.

It was brought out in the injunction hearing that in 1929 the bonuses amounted to $3,600,000.

The court held that "this bonus system entered materially into the consideration for the sale and into the value of Bethlehem stock to be received in exchange for Sheet & Tube stock."

Judge Jenkins also said the veteran Sheet & Tube chairman, James A. Campbell, and Sheet & Tube president, Frank Purnell, knew enough of the bonus system "to exercise ordinary care to investigate and report its effect first to the directors and then to the stockholders."

"The circumstances that no such investigation or revelation was made by any director cannot be reconciled in equity with the performance of the fiduciary duty owing the shareholders of Youngstown, either directly to them or indirectly to them through the other directors," the judge added.

OFFICIALS CONFER

Sheet & Tube Co. Heads Discuss Adverse Ruling in Merger Case.

By International News Service

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 29—Apparently stunned by the decision of Judge David G. Jenkins in granting an injunction against the merger of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. with Bethlehem Steel Corp. today, the board of directors and all officials of the concern went into closed conference, this morning, presumably to consider possible further action regarding the proposed consolidation.

None of the officers of the Youngstown company could be reached for a statement. Roy D. Welch, secretary to James A. Campbell, veteran chairman of the board, acting as spokesman, told International News Service that he doubted whether any official statement would be forthcoming from the company officials today.

Welch said that none of the officers or directors made any remarks before they departed for secret chambers for the conference immediately after being notified of Judge Jenkins' verdict. The conference was expected to last until noon. Welch stated that if any statements were made that they would represent the entire body of officers rather than any individual.

The executive heads were called from their homes this morning immediately following announcement of Judge Jenkins' decision.

CRILE EXPLAINS NEW LIFE LINK

Artificial Cells Designed To Give Clue to Means of Producing Life.

GIVES FIRST INTERVIEW

Experiment Demonstrated; Says Research Sheds Light on Subject of Cancer.

(Editor's Note: Dr. George W. Crile of the Cleveland clinic in the following exclusive interview, for the first time gave an authorized explanation of results of his experiments in the production of artificial cells with life-like characteristics. The experiment, which is hoped to give science its first tangible clue in its constant search for methods of producing life, was repeated by two of Dr. Crile's assistants for David Dietz, United Press Science correspondent, and explained to him by Dr. Crile.)

(Copyright, 1930, by United Press)

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 29—Artificial cells brought into existence in the laboratory of Dr. George W. Crile at the Cleveland clinic, may form a link between the lifeless and the living, it was revealed today in an exclusive interview with Dr. Crile.

The cells procreated by division just as do many living unicellular animals such as the amoeba, and have exhibited reactions to oxygen and to poisons similar to that of living cells.

Further research may reveal that they are primitive cells resembling more nearly the cells of cancer and hence throwing important light on the study of that disease.

These facts were revealed today when Dr. Crile for the first time discussed the work which has been going on in his laboratory and made known details of the experiment, news of which leaked out a few weeks ago and was published throughout the country as "the artificial creation of life."

Between Two Opposites

"For the present," said Dr. Crile, "let us regard the cell as somewhere in the vague ground between the lifeless and the living."

Two of Dr. Criles assistants repeated the experiment for the writer, enabling him to see under the microscope the way in which the "autosynthetic cells," as Dr. Crile calls them, are formed.

A glass slide with a little depression ground into its center was placed under the microscope. In the depression was placed a drop of solution containing various salts. To this was added a lipoid, a fat, which has been extracted from brain tissue of a freshly-slaughtered animal. Reaction between the two took place, resulting in the formation of tiny fibres.

The artificial or "autosynthetic" cell is completed by adding protein from brain tissue.

Lifelike Forms Appear

When this is added, structures like tiny cells of living creatures, only simpler and more regular in form, come into existence. Dr. Crile calls them "autosynthetic" because they put themselves together automatically as the various ingredients are mixed.

"I do not want to say at this time what the autosynthetic cells are," Dr. Crile said. "Our experiments are not finished. If news had not leaked out prematurely, I would not have discussed this matter for months yet."

A display of the Crile experiment including a micro-projection of the autosynthetic cells was to be shown today in the exhibitions of the American Association for the Advancement of Science at Western Reserve university. Dr. Crile indicated this display would not have been made at this time either if his original plans had carried through.

Dr. Crile revealed that the experiments leading to the creation of these cells were undertaken as part of a research seeking light upon the subject of cancer.

The human body, like all other living organisms, consists of a great collection of microscopic cells, each of which is highly complex and each of which has many functions to perform.

The cancer cell is barbaric and primitive. Its only function is growth at the expense of the other cells, eventually killing them off.

"The autosynthetic cell resembles the cancer cell in many ways," Dr. Crile said. "It, too, is a primitive cell whose only function is growth."

Government Tax Refunds Total Over 126 Millions

U. S. Steel Corp. Benefits Most; Swift Packing Co. Is Second.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—Thousands of corporations today found their balance sheets restored somewhat nearer to the normal with the announcement by the treasury department of more than 10,000 tax refunds involving the return of $126,836,033.

This large sum represents only about 85 per cent in amount that of last year when $148,164,359 was returned.

As has happened before, the United States Steel corporation, the nation's largest business enterprise was favored with the lion's share of the returns. It received $15,208,43. The next largest return was given to Swift & Co. Chicago meat packers, who received $7,068,942.

John D. Rockefeller was given the largest sum of an individual when he received $448,406, but Henry Ford, whose motor car helped make the Rockefeller oil millions got only $46,441.

The relative of wealthy persons came in for much larger slices of the large sum than any living individuals due to the complicated system of assessing inheritance taxes. The Horace E. and John F. Dodge estates led the class obtaining $973,619 and $762,879 respectively.

Various New York City corporations and firms paid out $15,000,000 in Christmas bonuses to employes this year. That should result in booming the business of commercial houses a bit even in the world's largest municipality.

The navy department has announced that recruiting will be resumed early in January, half the number of normal enlistments being taken on in January, three-quarters in February and the full quota in March. Another assault on Old Man Unemployment.

Accidents will happen. After many years the New York City papers finally printed the likeness of a society woman of the metropolis who may fairly be described as good-looking.

Ice is being shipped to the United States from Mexico, the carbon monoxide gas in the wells of the Tampico oil fields, which has a surface pressure of 1,000 pounds to the square inch, being used to make it. Looking out over the frozen and snow-covered landscape up here, it seems a lot like carrying coals to Newcastle.

Japan has voted $17,000,000 to aid her 400,000 jobless, the money to be used in the construction of highways. With but 400,000 unemployed in the country, Japan these days might be classed as a land of industry.

Five Hoosier youths were sentenced out in Champaign, Illinois, last week, to from one to ten years in prison for robbing a filling station. There's a lot of real merit in that old one about honesty being the best policy.

A citizen of Clay Cross, England, who had been held for drunkenness because he had difficulty in repeating the tongue-twister, "The Leeth police dismisseth us," was at once dismissed by the judge, who didn't pretend to be a Solomon. He simply tried the line himself.

Judge John H. Lyle, who has been fighting crime so insistently that the Chicago bar holds his methods "unethical," is out as a candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor of the Windy City. There's this to be said for his candidacy: it will not be necessary to make himself known to the Chicago electorate. He has already accomplished that.

It has been revealed that a recent bank run in New York City was started by communists, who went about telling of the alleged shaky condition of the bank in question, which, fortunately, wasn't shaky, and withstood the run. An attempt to start a similar run on another bank was nipped in the bud by the exposure of the red plot against the first.

Fine Work Continues.

Although it may seem like a twice-told tale, so recently have we commented on the splendid work being done by the central welfare commissary, we can not refrain from speaking again of its accomplishment in meeting the wants of the needy.

During the third week of its operation, that ended December 20, it rendered assistance to 150 familes, supplying needed articles to eight-one men, thirty-five women, fifty-seven girls and seventy-eight boys, a total of 251 persons served, making a grand total of 888 persons to whom service was rendered during the three weeks.

During the week ended December 20, the commissary supplied those in need of them with 639 articles of clothing, making the grand total of all articles supplied for the three weeks, including bedding and furniture up to the end of that week 2,959.

It's a work of which the community may well be proud. It does credit to the people who give of what they have and honor to those who give of their time and labor to put all articles given out in good and serviceable shape. An idea of the volume of work necessary to accomplish this may be had when it is stated that, in addition to all the articles of clothing put into shape, 890 pairs of shoes have been repaired during the three-week period and that six men have given a total of twenty days and forty-four women a total of 179 days to the work.

Yet, despite all this, the demand on the commissary continues and probably will continue—in a somewhat lessened degree, of course—until the cold weather is no more and spring has come. To make the record good, contributions of clothing and other articles are necessary, and those who have such articles as the commissary needs—they have been stated time and time again—should see to it that these get to the commissary headquarters in the Y. M. C. A. building.

The Dedication.

The magnificent memorial to the late President Warren G. Harding belongs not to Marion nor to the neighborhood, but to the nation and the generations of the future. Its dedication, outside true enough in fitting ceremonial by President Hoover probably as compatible by former President Coolidge is and should be welcomed by all who claim real friendship for Mr. Harding and zeal his memory dear.

The present controversy if it can be dignified by that term, over the formality of calling a meeting of the Memorial executive committee, is no compliment to the memory of our distinguished neighbor and citizen. Both Calvin Coolidge and President Hoover have been criticised for not dedicating the memorial before this. Perhaps it should have been done. Possibly the secretary of the executive committee of the Memorial association is correct in stating that President Hoover has already been invited. It is also possible that President Hoover has always been willing to participate in these ceremonies at a time which he might regard as the proper time. In any event, the President has announced his readiness to attend a dedication early in 1931, and we are willing to acknowledge that announcement as coming from one who knows better than we, or any member of the executive committee, his own reasons for making it at this time.

"President Hoover gracefully volunteers to end an embarrassing dilemma," says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Sentiment over the state and nation agrees with that.

"One does not request the President's attendance by a standing invitation," the Plain Dealer's editorial continues. "History has not yet recorded its final estimate of the character of Warren G. Harding and of the merits or demerits of his administration. He has been assailed by those who have not suffered the sanctity of the grave to soften the virulence of their personal attack. It seems to us that these matters are not relevant in determining the time and manner of the dedication of his tomb."

Marion and the Memorial executive committee owe it to the state and nation to make immediate preparations for the ceremony, to work out with the White House the date most convenient to President Hoover and to remove any obstacles there now might seem to be from the prospect of a dignified and graceful ceremony.

The records show that it cost $328,614 to elect Gifford Pinchot governor of Pennsylvania. At this distance that looks like an awful price to pay, considering the goods delivered.

Canada threatens to repeal the ban on rum transportation if the United States persists in its attempts to bar Canadian commuters from working on this side of the border. The "experiment noble in purpose" certainly has been productive of a lot of problems which refuse to stay solved.

Jeffersonian Simplicity.

Governor-Elect White has planned a simple inauguration ceremony. There will be no ostentatious showing, no fanfare, no elaborate display. It is easy to believe that Mr. White would like his inauguration to be a symbol of the kind of governor he intends to be.

Such intentions are clearly in line with the best Democratic tradition. There is the additional virtuous consideration of economy. The money saved by the observance of Jeffersonian simplicity can be used to good advantage in more productive ways.

Governor-Elect White has the confidence of the state. In him is reposed implicit trust for a straightforward, efficient administration that will be characterized by directness and simplicity. The inauguration he has planned is a good omen.

During the year thus far, the coast guard has seized 2,441 vessels for illegal operations, chiefly the running of rum. No wonder our friends who show their high appreciation of law and order by patronizing bootleggers are inclined to complain over the prices charged.

Secretaries Stimson and Doak are as one for a ninety per cent. immigration slash. If the situation calls for a ninety per cent. cut, why not go the whole distance and make it a hundred?

One result of the recent revolution in Spain is the addition of 4,000 prisoners to that land's jail population. At that rate, a few more revolutions would crowd the jails over there almost as badly as a Volstead law.

Premier Mussolini, of Italy, blames the Wall Street crash for the Italian treasury deficit of $47,000,000. Maybe he's right, but if so, Italy has no great cause for complaint. Considering the havoc it wrought over here, Italy was lucky to get off so easily.

A citizen of Chicago is dead as the result of having been hit twice by the same car. The first impact of the car knocked him thirty feet and, while he was rolling on the street, the car swerved and hit him again. When they can't get us the aristocrats of the land the first time they do not despair, but go after us again.

The French cabinet is considering means to overcome the business slump which has at last hit France, and for once the slump talk is founded on fact and isn't a mere pretense to get more favorable terms from foreign creditors. Uncle Sam among them. France, and particularly Paris, is at last suffering for its steady prosperity, the French for several years having exacted from tourists everything the traffic would bear.

We are naturally inclined to assume that the forces which formed our mountain ranges are no longer at work, but the scientists state that many parts of the world are still showing the effects of "the pressure of elevation." It's interesting to note, in this connection, that this scientific datum is so well recognized that the great engineer who laid out that most beautiful of all American roadways, the Columbia River highway, provided in the designing of all the bridges along it for the shifting of the mountains.

PULL TOGETHER, BOYS!

Editorial Opinion.

PRE-AMERICAN AMERICANS.

A mammoth seems at least a hundred times more perishable than a tree, and since the Arctic snows have preserved the flesh of mammoths which perished ten or twenty or more thousand years ago, so perfectly refrigerated that their meat was still edible, we should perhaps not marvel at learning of the discovery of trees some millions of years old, so fresh that their wood can still be whittled with a pocket knife. Yet such a link with a remote prehuman past seems a sheer miracle.

It was temperature which kept the mammoths fresh. Every spring Arctic freshets, suddenly shifting their courses, cut into snowbanks which have acted as hermetically sealed ice chests for longer than such words as "time immemorial" denote; and once in a decade or so one of these freshets cuts a snowbank where a mammoth had stumbled and fallen in the uncounted centuries that preceded their final extinction.

It is tar which has kept the just discovered north Albertan trees fresh. The famous sticky tar sands near Fort McCurray preserved fallen trees from air and water, and there they have lain for perhaps 20,000,000 years, until a prying member of a race which was not even born until those trees were long dead dug into and beneath them and unearthed their ancient hulks. Even the leaves are said to be fairly preserved, and the tiny insect parasites. Scientists assert that they are of a type which still grows in Japan today. The dispatches are not specific, but presumably the trees are gingkhos, since gingkhos once flourished all across Canada and on to Spitzbergen and are now confined as natives to the Far East. It is an impressive thing to look up the little trees from Japan planted today in City Hall and Gramercy parks, on Brooklyn Heights and in Greenwich Village, and to realize that they are descendants of a race of trees which, Asiatic to our minds, was American before the name American was ever heard or the race of man even born.—New York Herald Tribune.

Lord Dunmore in Ohio.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH

But little more than a year after he had led his Virginia troops to what is now Pickaway county, Ohio, and wrested from the Indians a treaty in which they agreed to cease harassing Virginia settlers, Lord Dunmore was himself a fugitive from Virginia troops and was forced to seek safety from them and forced to seek refuge on board an English war vessel.

It was in the early fall of 1774 that he reached the Scioto at Columbus, and it was on the way back to Virginia that he heard the first muttering among his troops against the treatment of the colonies by Great Britain that was in a few months to culminate in an open breach. On the banks of the Ohio the officers in the expedition adopted resolutions directing a threat of revolution if fairer treatment were not accorded the colonies.

It was in November that Governor Dunmore heard that the Virginia patriots were on their way to occupy Norfolk, the largest city in Virginia then, and he hastily built a fortification on the Norfolk side of the Elizabeth river commanding the approach to Norfolk.

The Virginia patriot army took possession of the opposite bank of the river, about where Portsmouth now stands, and fortified the place. On December 9, 156 years ago, Lord Dunmore ordered the British regulars, Virginia Tories and a few negroes under his command to attack the colonial forces and drive them away. A fierce battle ensued, lasting half a hour, in which the assailants were repulsed and driven away, leaving two of their guns behind spiked. The attacking force lost sixty-one killed and wounded, the Virginia patriots not one.

Lord Dunmore hurried back to Norfolk, which, being untenable, he set on fire, and took refuge on board a British war vessel lying in the harbor. Norfolk was reduced to ashes.

Regulated Life Wise.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Nephritis, or Bright's disease, is an inflammation of the kidneys. It may be of the acute or the chronic type.

It is known to the medical profession as a "secondary" disease. That is, it is a condition that follows a disturbance somewhere else in the body. Nine times out of ten it comes from an infection, from a poison somewhere in the system.

In Bright's disease the function of the kidneys is disturbed. No longer can it eliminate what the doctors call the "nitrogen products," the urea, uric acid and ammonia. If the disease can not be relieved quickly, there must be a material reduction in the taking of foods rich in nitrogen. These are the meat dishes chiefly.

It is necessary that the life of the patient be so regulated that the demand for protein food will be at a minimum. In short, the patient must not indulge in much physical exercise.

In an acute attack, there may be dropsy, or swelling of the tissues as an early symptom. Fever, more or, less severe, is usually present. Sickness at the stomach and vomiting are usual symptoms.

There is dull pain over the region of the kidneys, in the small of the back. This may not necessarily be pronounced, but this region shows tenderness on pressure.

The chronic form of Bright's disease is a difficult condition to treat. It lasts for years and the diet must be regulated carefully all of the time.

In the acute attack, milk may be the only safe protein food to give. Even this may be too rich in protein. Your physician will have to decide the matter of diet in every case.

Water should be freely administered. Sugar, cereals, gruel, and possibly bread, may be taken in the acute attack.

Buttermilk and oatmeal are sometimes given. If milk is well borne, it will supply all the nourishment needed. It should be of average richess, not skimmed. From one and a half to two points should be given daily.

After one or two days of this diet other foods are usually added gradually. Cereals with cream are given twice daily, and bread to the extent of five or six slices, with preserves and unsalted butter, may be included in the diet.

Cooked fruits, especially baked apple or stewed prunes, are usually well borne. Orange juice and other fresh fruit juices may be given.

Since the juices of meat seem to contain elements harmful in this disease, broiled and roasted meats and meat soups are to be avoided. Boiled meat is to be preferred. Oysters are of low protein content. So are salmon and some other fish, excepting cod and shad, and they may be taken in moderation. The yolk of egg, potatoes and green vegetables should be included. Tea and coffee may be taken in moderation.

The bowels should be kept open and the skin active. Frequent baths, gentle exercise, warm climate and mental poise are helpful.

Let it be understood that I am making general observations. The personal treatment and advice of your doctor are absolutely essential.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

C. C. Q—What can be done for a lump on the side of the throat? My doctor advises operation.

A—Follow your doctor's advice.

VERY ANXIOUS. Q Could an enlarged thyroid cause epilepsy in a boy sixteen years old?

2—Would a pressure on the large veins of the neck cause this condition?

A—No.

2—No.

E. H. M. Q—Is it advisable to fast once every week or once every two weeks, in order to reduce the weight? Are hot epsom baths reducing. Will a laxative taken every week or so prove effective in this respect? Will walking bring about results?

A—No. If the diet is properly restricted and the patient takes plenty of exercise, there should be no need to resort to more drastic measures. Hot epsom salts baths are apt to be very weakening, if taken without proper medical advice. It is unnecessary to resort to laxatives or purgatives in order to reduce. Walking is most healthful and should be helpful under the circumstances.

Herschel, Breaker of Sky-Barriers.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The career of Sir William Herschel is one of the most stimulating and extraordinary recorded in the annals of science. Such a story contains the elements with a promise from success achieved through unremitting labor, unlimited patience, broad views and an ideal pursued without the slightest faltering. Upon Herschel's tombstone are graven the Latin words: Coelorum perrupit claustra. He broke through the barriers of the skies. By his labors, his spectacular discoveries, his inventive talents, he turned the attention of astronomers forcibly in the direction of observational astronomy. He laid the foundations for some of the most important theories regarding the major sidereal features and the movements of the heavenly bodies as a whole.

Herschel was a musician, an inventor, a scientist, a discoverer. Born in Hanover, Germany, November 15, 1738, the son of a musician, he early displayed great musical talent. At the age of nineteen, he went to England and for many years supported himself by means of his musical abilities. Step by step he advanced in his profession until at the age of twenty-eight he was made concert director at Bath. Some years later, a brother, Alexander, and his favorite sister, Caroline, joined him and took part in the concerts which he directed.

It has been said that the reading of Ferguson's astronomy fired Herschel with the ambition to explore the heavens and to examine for himself the countless wonders to be found there. Unable to purchase a telescope, he set about the stupendous task of making one. After no fewer than 200 failures, he finally succeeded in making a reflecting telescope of five and a half feet in focal length and five-inch aperture. Eventually he succeeded in becoming probably the most expert manufacturer of telescopic mirrors who had ever lived. He made telescopes for sale, receiving as much as $15,000 for one. In this way, he made enough money to enable him to manufacture a huge forty-foot instrument, upon which he was engaged for four years. It was, however, with his twenty-foot reflector that Herschel chiefly carried on his stupendous task of making a thorough-going survey of the heavens.

On March 13, 1781, Herschel with this twenty-foot reflector discovered a heavenly body which he took to be a comet. Although he carefully studied this new object, proved that it had a perceptible disc, and found that it moved among the stars, it never occurred to this modest amateur astronomer that the new object he had discovered was a planet. He announced the newly-discovered body to the world as a comet. After some months, during which the body was kept under observation by leading astronomers of the world, it was discovered that its orbit was circular. When it was realized that the new body was a planet, Herschel immediately became immensely famous for his spectacular discovery. The planet, named by Herschel Georgium Sidus, and by others "Herschel," was eventually given the title Uranus, which it now bears.

The list of Herschel's discoveries is imposing; but it scarcely gives a correct idea of the importance of his work and influence upon the future development of astronomy. He catalogued more than 800 double stars, and more than 2,000 nebulae. He is the author of the fruitful modern theory that these nebulae are "island universes," and thus gave an extraordinary impetus to their study, taken up vigorously in very recent years. He likewise discovered that the sun, which carries along the entire solar system, is moving toward a definite point in space, which he reckoned to be near the star Lambda Herculis; and later studies have confirmed this, although the point is not precisely that which Herschel found. Herschel made important studies of Mars, of "spots" on the sun, of Jupiter and Saturn; and discovered new Saturnian and Jovian satellites.—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Thursday, December 29.

Fifteen persons were killed by the explosion of the boiler of an ice plant in Pittsfield, Massachusetts.

William H. Baker, a well-known resident of the city, was found in a dying condition, alone and guarded by his dog at his home on north State street. He died shortly thereafter.

A marriage license was issued to Clara A. Zeig and John D. De Long.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Stafford, of the Boulevard.

The Star reported the births, the day before, of a son to Mr. and Mrs. William Wolfinger, residing seven miles south of the city; a son to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Conway, residing four miles west of the city and a son to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hower, of Lime avenue.

A movement was afoot to reorganize the Marion Commercial club.

By remaining in the air eight hours and five minutes Maurice Tabuteaux, of France, broke the world's flying record.

Miss Florence Ault and Mr. William Kepler were married at the home of the bride's parents at Caledonia by the father of the bride, Justice of the Peace G. W. Ault.

A high tension wire was broken during a remarkable heavy snowstorm and both Marion and Prospect were in darkness as a result.

The Star told of the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Parker, of Owens, the preceding Tuesday.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, Dec. 29—Diary of a nice Pepys: Early to my watch repairer who unfailingly charges $2.50 and met up with Ira Pemberton, an erstwhile co-slave on the Evening Mail and now a nabob of the theater. So back home to twitter this dailyode.

In the afternoon fell to reading letters of James Whitcomb Riley and interested especially in those to Meredith Nicholson. A beautiful thing was his faith. Shortly before passing William Lyon Phelps inquired if he feared death. He replied: "Why, you see, I will go right on living."

To dinner with Henry and Anne Sell, affrighted when a shot from a cooked pheasant rolled under my tongue, mistaking it for a tooth filling. Then with my wife to the "Grand Hotel," diverting drama, but not worth the $15.50 paid for two tickets. Late to bed.

Many innocent side street hotels in New York are havens of organized vice. They offer attractive rates to elderly and respectable couples, for they give an aura of benign valetudinarian dignity they could not otherwise attain. Most of them are the proverbial stone's toss from Broadway.

Here gather the stool pigeons and the world fixers. The drug and liquor caches are often there, from which runners and peddlers are sent forth. Vice barons buy a major interest in such inns and control them in the same manner in which they control the night clubs.

Gang murders, robberies and blackmail shake-downs are hatched in this atmosphere of pseudo-respectability. Unhappily, many visitors to the city go innocently to this type of hotel. In two instances recently strangers have been held as material witnesses.

In such hotels one hears the jargon of the underworld—such words as "grand," "cush," "a deck" and "a bust in the arm." Here, too, are the hennaed and peroxided ladies who are stellate in the nocturnal luster of night clubs—the glorified molls of the gunmen.

Lait is also authority for the origin of the Broadway slang: "It's the real McCoy" as a token of superiority. Kid McCoy was once standing in front of his cafe on Broadway and Thirty-ninth street. ## A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Dec. 29—A small, black-thatched member of the house, with black eyes that pierce the one on whom they are directed, usually is seen on the floor when any bill concerning the welfare of the American Indian is up for discussion—

He is William Wirt Hastings of Oklahoma, for something like fourteen years a representative of the Second district of that state.

When he arises to express an opinion on legislation affecting the Indian, he is heard. And it is not because he is a member of the house's committee on Indian affairs, for he is not.

They listen to him because by blood he is an Indian himself—a Cherokee.

One hardly would suspect it to see him. Those piercing black eyes give the only clue to his ancestry—those and his intense interest in seeing that the Indian gets a square deal.

In fact, it is a tribute to the man that, when a bill dealing with the Assiniboine Indians was up in the house, Jack Garner, the Democratic leader, was moved to make the following observation:

"It looks to me as if the Indian committee would really give the capitol to the Indians if they wished it. I hope this bill does not involve title to this building. . . ."

Hastings was backing the measure as a Democrat.

The Oklahoma representative is an authority on questions involving his people. He received his education at the Cherokee seminary, graduating there in 1884. Later he was an honor man in his law class at Vanderbilt university.

Almost from the start of his career he has fought the cause of his people. Two years after graduating from law school he took up the duties of attorney general for the Cherokee nation and served for four years.

And since 1890—one year after completing his law course at Vanderbilt—he has represented the Cherokee nation in winding up tribal affairs before the commission to the Five Civilized Tribes and the departments in Washington.

From 1907 to 1914 he served at national attorney for the Cherokee tribe. In the latter year he came to congress for the first time. He has been returned to every congress since that time except one—the 67th.

That he hasn't permitted his interest in Indian affairs to slow up as the years go by is evidenced by the activity in this respect during the present congress. His official record shows that he has repeatedly introduced bills and resolutions in behalf of the Indians and has inveriably at hand to aid in their passage.

Mrs. Hastings, too, is of Indian blood. Of their there are three children, one of whom bears the good Cherokee name of "Ahnawake."

"PART TIME WIFE" COMING TO PALACE FOR TWO-DAY RUN

Edmund Lowe and Lelia Hyams Carry Leading Roles in Picture.

BY MALLIE HOLTA

EDMUND LOWE and Lelia Hyams carry on the comedy of "Part Time Wife" at the Palace Tuesday and Wednesday, with Tommy Clifford and a stray dog "Tony" carrying along the plot.

She was angry with him and he couldn't understand her. They patted. Golf was one of the things that did it and forgetfulness of an appointment was another.

The disreputable dog and the freckle-faced boy have a great deal to do with the story, for the picture was made from Stewart Edward White's story, "Shepper Newfounder."

Very few persons know that Edmund Lowe, born in San Jose Calif., graduated from Santa Clara university at age of 18 with a B. A. degree and later earned his M. A. degree. Miss Hyams is the daughter of John Hyams and Leila McIntyre, favorite vaudeville team and has been a stage child all her life.

Little Tommy Clifford the boy of the story was born in Southampton, England, but was taken to Ireland while he was still in swaddling clothes. And "Tony," the dog "Tony" is just a dog from the city pound of Hollywood, but he is one of the most comical appearing, yet lovable types that ever happened and that is why he was chosen out of hundreds of sleek, trained dogs for the part of "Shepper Newfounder."

SABLE COATS REASON FOR FUTURE

Sables are a fashion parade to us this Extravagance coming to the Marion Tuesday and Wednesday. Wife June Collyer and Lloyd Hughes sharing honors in the feature roles and beside Dorothy Christy and Owen Moore putting off second.

To a woman the last word in luxury is sable. The soft lustrous brown coat of the little Siberian animal that is dear to women as a symbol of wealth. Two women who desire sable coats are the reason for the production of "Extravagance."

And here, way down near the bottom of the cast of characters is the name of a young man who was the Charles Rogers of his heyday, Bobby Agnew. He made more than 40 pictures before the talking era, but since that momentous era opened, we haven't seen nor heard from Agnew.

It is interesting for the tall girls of the fair city to know that among the women in the cast there is no one under five feet five inches, which is the height of June Collyer. Dorothy Christy is five feet six and Gwen Lee is five feet seven.

REPORT LISTS NEEDS OF WELFARE WORK

Cooper Commission Submits Ideas on Conduct of 22 State Institutions.

With penal institutions providing for a daily capacity of 6,800 but actually accommodating 8,222 in 1929, the commission declared that overcrowding has "reached a serious point." The average daily population was two and one-half times that of 1920. These figures were presented for the various institutions: Ohio penitentiary, including brick plants, quarry and honor groups, average daily 4,524 with maximum capacity of 3,700; Mansfield reformatory, including Grafton farm and other honor groups, average daily, 2,523, maximum capacity, 1,800; London prison farm, average daily 873; maximum capacity, 1,300.

"The present overcrowded condition of these institutions limits the reformatory work and the effective classification of prisoners," the report said, adding that "a further increase in institutional facilities is imperative," and that the incoming legislature meet the necessity. Limitation of 1,200 inmates to an institution was recommended.

Advising against increasing the capacity of present penal institutions the commission recommended development of the Grafton farm into a regular institution with 1,200 capacity and construction of a new institution within the next two years, its character and size to be dependent on the general policy of classification, segregation and organized endeavor to rehabilitate prisoners and return them to society.

Recognizing that any new building program could not be gotten well under way before 1932, the commission recommended construction of a new dormitory at London prison farm to accommodate a total of 1,300 prisoners, and a new dormitory outside the walls at the Mansfield reformatory. Both are now under construction. Should a policy be adopted to maintain more than 1,300 prisoners at London farm construction of a wall about the institution is recommended.

So far as the Columbus prison is concerned with respect to proper housing and regard for sanitation and fire protection, the commission said the institution had been practically rebuilt, noting that all cell blocks are virtually new and modern, and that present dormitories are in good condition. As soon as the industrial building is completed, three wings of which are almost ready for occupancy, working quarters at the prison will be modern and fireproof, the commission said.

"If the population of the penitentiary is reduced to the figure recommended (3,700 capacity) then this institution at once becomes admirably adapted to the care of prisoners requiring strong detentional facilities," the report said.

Praising the policy of classification of prisoners already put into operation through the bureau of examination and classification, the recommendation was made that the force be temporarily augmented by the next legislature, in order that the welfare department may determine the appropriate treatment for most offenders. Increase in the parole staff also was recommended as was expansion of county probation departments where such now is inadequate.

Commenting on idleness among prisoners, the report said "It is the opinion of the commission that there is no problem of more tragic significance in institutions of correction than the matter of idleness and the commission recommends that prison industry and farms be developed in all prison units to the greatest degree possible under the statutes of Ohio."

While recognizing there is overcrowding at the women's reformatory at Marysville, the commission said the situation there had been relieved by elimination of misdemeanor cases and with more adequate parole supervision and extension of county probation, facilities at that institution are adequate.

These recommendations are made for the Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster and the Girls' Industrial School at Delaware, each of which is the largest of their kind in the country and "each so overcrowded that effective correctional work is extremely difficult." That no facilities be made to increase the population but that every effort be made to hold the population stationary.

Overcrowding was found in most of the mental hygiene institutions which include the seven hospitals for insane, the hospital for criminal insane, the two institutions for feeble-minded and one for epileptics.

In these institutions, exclusive of the Lima hospital for the criminal insane, the commission figured there was an excess of 1,882 patients. The overcrowding at the Massillon, Cleveland and Longview hospitals was declared to be "especially acute." Overcrowding in Ohio hospitals was declared not so acute as in several other states and foreign countries. The increase in Ohio during the last 25 years was not as rapid as in several other states the commission found.

Declaring that many insane persons should be cared for who cannot be with present facilities, the commission recommended increase in facilities to care for a ratio of 250 for each 100,000 population. On this basis the state was caring for 10,450 patients in 1928 and should have been caring for 1,588 more daily.

RUTH CHATTERTON PLAYS SPLENDID ROLE

Ruth Chatterton outdoes herself in "The Right to Love," to be shown at the Palace for the last time tonight. Skillfully she handles her three roles and so interested were Chatterton's admirers yesterday, that there was an atmosphere of tenseness in the audience as the play gained momentum.

First we see her as a young girl of the middle west. The boy whom she truly loves and who loves her is killed. Her baby is to be born and Irving Pichel, a Colorado farmer who thinks dancing and all the pleasures she loves are pale things of the devil, marries her.

Next we see her as the mother and as the daughter. She has been named Knock after the trusting niece of her mother and real father. Chatterton the mother wants her girl to dance and live life and young people. Her "father" would have her be a missionary and go to China. Her mother tells her the truth that Pichel is not her father.

The daughter immediately turns from her mother to her father and observing his wishes goes to China. Here she meets Paul Lukas, wealthy man who loves her devotedly. On the night her mother is dying, the young girl has a struggle within herself whether to go on as a missionary or to give herself up to love and Lukas and all the things she has wanted. ## Yuletide Decorations Are Setting for Club Dance

YULETIDE decorations afforded a lovely setting for the post Christmas dance given Saturday night at the Marion Steam Shovel gym, for which members of the University club were hosts. The lights were hung with holly boughs and one end of the hall was banked with lighted Christmas trees. Members of the Harding Hotel orchestra played the dance program from a canopy covered enclosure at each side of which was placed a white Christmas tree. Eighty couples attended the affair which was one of the most enjoyable of the holiday festivities. Walter Kraft, Ted Brownlee and Robert Conley were members of the general committee in charge of the affair.

CHAPTER 6

The Latest Sensation

VIVIENNE relaxed and reached for a cigarette. On a dais in Channing's studio she had been posing through the morning.

At long last she had found it difficult. Keeping still for so long was different from posing for a few moments before the camera's lens. But after the first few days had passed she got the trick of it. Photographic prints and sketches strewn on the floor gave striking evidence of Channing's thoroughness. There was scarcely any angle from which he had not recorded an impression of Vivienne.

Channing's deft fingers had been busy with his clay. Now he critically examined the dainty eight inches of figure he had begun to fashion, looking up at his model his expression registered artistic satisfaction. Her coloring was gorgeous in its striking contrast.

The black-black cap of her hair was as sleek as though it had been lacquered. A vivid gash of crimson revealed a half-smile on her lips as mocking as the mystery in the depths of her half-closed eyes.

Putting down Channing's lighter Vivienne exhaled a cloud of smoke. Her arm dropped carelessly to her side and a bluish haze filtered up through her long slender fingers. "Well, that's a relief," she announced with a sigh. "Some day you'll keep me here so long that I'll never move again."

Channing threw a wet cloth over his embryo statue. "How about a bit of luncheon?"

"They're the sweetest words I've ever heard." Vivienne drew a shawl about her, a magnificent Spanish specimen of rose-embroidered black. Through the closed glass doors she glimpsed the vista of terrace. "Can we be served out there?" she asked. "I'd like to bathe in the fountain."

"I'll confess I'd like to let you." Channing helped her from the dais. "But as an artist, I insist that you don't catch cold. I mustn't forget my murals."

"Then I'll curb my mermaid tendencies," Vivienne promised him. "But I'm going to have lunch in the garden—even if I have to dress. I suppose I might as well, anyway. We're not working this afternoon?"

"No—but if you're comfortable why bother to change just now?"

"I shan't," she decided and sauntered out, carefully protecting her shoulders from the noon-day sun.

She peered over the parapet down into the canyon of the street below. If she lost her balance and tumbled down she wondered if they would mistake her for a fallen angel. Probably angel was not the term they would apply to her. Her costume would not suggest it. Nor would the circumstances preceding such a fall.

Vivienne wondered whether Channing had heard about Aileen. Now as he came from the studio she asked if he had read the account in the morning papers. He hadn't and told the Japanese servant to bring them out to him.

"So your sister's going to be a star." Channing lounged back in a wicker chair looking cool and comfortable in flannels and a sports shirt.

Vivienne walked across the grass plot scolded over the roof. She stretched out upon a cushioned hammock.

"Only a teensy little star," Vivienne explained. She clasped her hands behind her head and wiggled one foot over the edge of the canvas swing. "But the same Aileen's delighted and it may be her big chance."

Channing watched her for a moment but he seemed preoccupied as he scanned the papers his servant handed him.

PARK AVENUE GASPS AS "SANTA CLAUS' DAUGHTER" LUNCHES

Smart Restaurant Patrons Doubt Senses When Stage Star Appears In Make-Up.

Blase patrons of the exclusive Cafe Trianon were startled, amazed and otherwise disconcerted during the fashionable luncheon hour yesterday.

At a specially reserved table with a youthful male escort sat a bewilderingly pretty girl in an idealized costume somewhat suggestive of the familiar Santa Claus impersonators who stand at street corners during the holiday season.

Miss Santa Claus and her companion appeared to be oblivious of the astonished, not to say rude stares of supposedly well-bred persons at surrounding tables. A ripple of doubting comment ran round the aristocratic dining room.

Since no satisfactory explanation was forthcoming, there seemed nothing to do but wait and watch until the conspicuous couple calmly rose to depart.

It was then that the curious got a full look at Miss Santa Claus. She was attired in a belted jacket and trim red riding breeches. She wore high heeled patent leather boots, and these with her jaunty fur-trimmed cap suggested an Austrian hussar of "The Merry Widow" vintage.

Little Miss Santa Claus powdered her nose before she left the table. But instead of a handbag or vanity case, she carried a huge red stocking. The contents of that stocking resulted in a near-riot.

As the pair emerged on Park avenue most of the luncheon crowd followed. Out on the sidewalk Miss Santa Claus opened up her stocking— the one that was draped from her arm—and began to distribute pamphlets.

An advertising man stepped forward and with a gallant air suggested that Miss Santa Claus lend her endorsement to a well-known household product as a Christmas gift. He also asked her to dine with him and that started something.

Miss Santa Claus' escort bristled. The shrewd but kindly gentleman with the bright idea was neatly touched upon the chin and tumbled over backward. By that time the minions of the law appeared and Miss Santa Claus and her escort were removed to the precinct station.

The fascinating young woman gave her name as Aileen Gray and stated that she is an actress. She explained that she had thoughtlessly strayed from the theater in costume and apologized to the police for creating a disturbance.

Her companion admitted brazenly that he was James Crane, a publicity man in Max Klein's employ. He revealed under grilling that Miss Gray will soon be seen in a Broadway musical comedy called "Sara's Christmas Stocking." Both were held in bail for further hearing tomorrow.

"Well," Vivienne asked when Channing looked up. "What do you think of it?"

"I think I want to meet this Jimmy Crane—and I want to know your sister. Here's to them both!" he proposed and passed Vivienne her drink—"And to my statue," he added, touching his glass to hers.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

ONE week from this morning and we will all be back in school again, and it will be next year. I bet the reason people know so much is because they go to school so much. If cows had to go to school as much as boys do they would know a lot too. But then maybe they would feel bad about being cows, and about being milked for milk and killed for steaks and skun for shoes and their bones made into collar buttons, so maybe it is a good thing they don't have to go to school.

Yesterday was Sunday and it was cold, and when I had let Jubilee down by his rope and went down and done my work and went in and pushed my breakfast through my face and my ant had washed me hard enough to make up for all of the things she didn't get for Christmas, the bunch was waiting for me to go to Sunday school with them. Younise and Feeble and Maggie was the only ones that had learned the golden text. Girls are always that way.

When we were on our way to the church Younise and Feeble and Maggie walking forwards, and all the rest of the bunch in front of them walking backwards, so as to look at them whilst we talked to them, all at once Feeble said "Well! Well!" and when we turned around there was Mealy Gutwaltz all diked out in the new clothes Mrs. Wagmore had got her, and the fur on the collar of the coat was almost up to the top of her head, and the Lost Bag of Tripe said, "If you only had a new dress now you'd be fixed." Mealy just said, "Huh," and took off her coat and handed it to Feeble and began to strut her stuff so we could see her new dress, and the Lost Bag of Tripe reached over Feeble's shoulder and took the coat, which Feeble let go of without noticing, and he was on his tippytoes putting it over the top of a highboard fence when Mealy gave a yell and done a dive through the air like an airplane and landed with both hands against the back of the Lost Bag of Tripe's head so hard it must have almost pushed his nose through the fence. She got her coat, but his nose was bleeding from the inside, and the outside was full of slivers, and the tears was rolling down his cheeks. It was lucky for him that the church was too cold to hold Sunday school in, so he could go home.

Today was Monday and the Lost Bag of Tripe has got two black eyes and his nose is speckled where his mother took out slivers and put healing fluid on the places. He is kinda proud of it, and thinks it makes him look tough. But you got to be tough to look tough. And when you are tough some other kid is always wanting to lick you just to prove that he is tougher. There hasn't nobody licked me yet. And no dog has licked [illegible]

Thank her with me and then listen to her as I shall for whatever conditions she will make. I leave everything in her hands and shall be guided absolutely by her decision. Am I right in thinking you will join me in this?"

He was quite broken, but he had not wholly lost his theatrical jam. I told myself grimly. But it was no time for me to cavil. Before I could speak however, Mary had flown to me and perched on the arm of my chair, with her arms tightly around me while Noel lifted my hand in knightly fashion and kissed it.

"Whatever she says," he said brokenly, and I saw that the lad was very nearly at the end of his self-control.

"That goes double for me," Mary added with what I guessed was purposeful flippancy, designed to ease the emotional strain from which we all were suffering.

"It's a very simple matter," I said, "and I don't think my advice is needed at all. I am sure you all have thought out your decisions before this. If all opposition is removed to your formal betrothal," I turned to Noel and Mary, "and things are made professionally and financially easy for you, will you agree not to think of marriage for several years—about the number which it would take Mary to graduate from college if she had elected that work?" She is very young remember."

It was Mary who answered impetuously, more quickly I saw than Noel relished for his eyes shadowed at her reply.

"There's only one thing to keep me from marrying Noel tomorrow," she said, "and that's the fear of hampering his career—not mine if I have one.

The challenge was unmistakable and Phil Vertizen promptly took up the gage she had flung at him.

"I never do things by halves, Miss ... and I'm among ... When I've ... to the urgings of my own heart and the words of this charming special pleader," he bowed to her and asked your forgiveness, a Now I have shed the past as I hope you are going to do. I still hope to make of you the most brilliant Vertizen star. I shall take especial pride in training my future daughter-in-law, and I shall try to leave her freedom a little less rigid. But I see that your artistic ... marriage would hamper ... in the preparation as I certainly would hamper Noel in his career as a composer."

I think we all three started at this last speech, and Mr. Vertizen ...

"I have known for some time that my son was Boris Raminoff," he said, and, there was infinite pride in his voice, "but I have been too stubborn to acknowledge it. However, Noel needs no aid from me save the turning over to him of what is rightfully his, his mother's property. But, my boy—" he smiled at his son, "not as your father, but as a theatrical producer with some reputation for astuteness I am prepared to pay a handsome option for first look at anything you may do."

I caught my breath in admiration. At one sweep he had given back to Noel his independence and his pride. There would be no question again of the youth's humiliating dependence upon his father's will. And yet I tried to smother the insistent little voice which said over and over again:

"Make him promise all this in writing."
